

Comparing the Big 4

Ancestry, Findmypast and MyHeritage are three of the largest paid genealogy subscription sites.

Before taking the leap to subscribe to the sites, work out what records you need and what location you are searching then check each site record types to which will suit your needs best.

ancestry SUBSCRIBE SIGN IN >

“Through Ancestry I discovered my family were always connected to the sea.
Now I know why I am like I am.”

Ancestry – search.ancestry.com > Explore by Location > click a place

findmypast Family tree Search ▾ DNA 1939 Register Blog Help ▾

Findmypast – search.findmypast.com/search-world-records > World > click a place

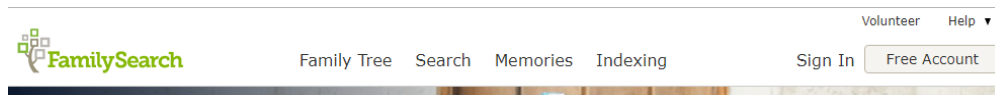

MyHeritage DNA Family tree Research Help

Search by location > Oceania > Australia

Australia
The Australia family history research page lists data collections relevant to Australia.
Start your search here to find ancestors originating from Australia and to research historical records pertaining to Australia.

MyHeritage – myheritage.com/research > Search Records by Location > click a place

FamilySearch Volunteer Help ▾

Family Tree Search Memories Indexing Sign In Free Account

FamilySearch – familysearch.org/search > Research by Location > click a place

Be sure to read each sites Terms & Conditions and Privacy policies to see what is involved with each site.

The three paid sites have free trials, these are worth taking advantage of to see if you like how the site works and what is available.

Useful Links

Ancestry Australia - <https://www.ancestry.com.au/>

Findmypast Australia - <https://www.findmypast.com.au/>

FamilySearch - <https://www.familysearch.org/en/>

MyHeritage - <https://www.myheritage.com/research/category-Australia/australia-genealogy-vital-records>